37 Rainbow Girls Off for Chicago

A CHAMPION DIVER IMITATES A SWAN

A beautiful girl doing a beautiful swan dive. The mermaid furnishing the action aptly is Miss Mary Sadowski of Walpole, New England senior diving champion. Miss Sadowski will give a special exhibition at the annual swimming meet of the Boston American July 29. The contests will take place at the Columbus Park Beach, South Boston. Hundreds of entries from hundreds of well known and not-so-well known swimmers have poured in to the Swim Editor. Is yours in yet? There's not much time left. Read another page of today's American and learn the qualifications and rules. Champions, Olympic stars and many up and coming girl swimmers will be included in the several events on the swim program. Back stroke, breast stroke, free style, fancy diving, high diving and many other events are open. Your entry will be honored. The contest is open to amateurs only.

TO WORLD'S FAIR
Chicago, get ready for Massachusetts Rainbow girls. They are coming to your World's Fair. Thirty-seven of them left Belmont this morning by bus. In front is Christine Ranney, in rear, Kathleen Talbot, both of Belmont. They'll stop off at many spots en route.

"A SALUTE TO YOU, DAD," SAID TED, JR.
On to Fort Devens—seemed to be order of the day, as from many sections of the State 6500 men of the Massachusetts National Guard started for annual encampment. Ted Wolan, Jr., came to Boston with dad, Sgt. Ted Wolan, 2d Battalion, headquarters battery and combat train. You see the salute.

"HERE'S WISHING FOR MORE GOOD CHICKEN"

A toast to more chicken and Dutch dinners. That's what the pretty maidens are offering Past Comdr. Arthur P. White, as they enjoy a bit of good old 32 at the Dutch supper, held by the Thomas J. Roberts Post, American Legion, at their headquarters in Dorchester. Left to right, the toasters are Jane Murphy, Rosie Taylor, Past Comdr. White, Agnes Murphy and Josephine White. Many Legionnaires and their women folk were on hand to partake of the sweets and meats. A varied program of entertainment followed the supper.

PULL A TOOTH, DOCTOR

Page a dentist. Happy the hippo, who makes his home in a nice cool tank of water at the Franklin Park Zoo, has a toothache. Maybe it's that cavity in the right molar. How Happy can open wide. If it were tonsillitis that was bothering Happy, it wouldn't be hard to get at the seat of trouble. Curator Dan Harkins is gently rubbing the gums.

DANCE 24 DAYS

Talk about endurance. Babe Faith of Milwaukee and Hughie Hendrickson of Indianapolis have been gliding on the Revere Marathon dance floor, since June 14. Babe and Hughie took none the worse for their grinding dance hours.

GREATER BOSTON FOLK RUSH TO REVERE TO EVADE HOT HOURS

With the fear of the heat rising to near where it was on Thursday, thousands of bathers flocked to Revere Beach, to evade the heat of city streets. Many happy children were included in the group. Hundreds of business men and women took time off for a little dip. The thermometer didn't hit 90 degrees, but that doesn't say it wasn't warm. A little east wind kept the glass down below the 90 mark. Beaches all over the Greater Boston area were well crowded by relief seekers.

DEEDS OF THE WHITE WILLOW

Mr. Boston

By JACK CONWAY

Two or three weeks ago, the wrestling news was looking for somebody who could tell me who would win the George Thompson world's heavyweight championship. I was in the Boston Garden on July 15 by Paul Brown for the Christian Boston-Boston of the Boston Evening American.

Mr. Boston was the first to come to the ring. He was a tall, thin, white, clean-shaven man, with a high forehead and a high nose. He was wearing a white shirt and a white tie. He was looking at the camera with a serious expression.

Joe Blimp

By MARK HELLINGER

(Trade Mark Registered) Copyright, 1932.

THIS is an ironical tale. But, as J. M. Joseph points out, it is always best to strike while the iron is hot. It's all about our old friend, Joe Blimp, whose wife ran away with another man. He should have been very happy about the situation, because plenty of husbands would have given anything to be in his shoes. But Joe was miserable—which is where the first touch of irony comes in.

All his life Joe Blimp had purchased his outfits from Lewis & Sons. You know Lewis & Sons—"Everything a Man Wears." From a collar to a corset. They were smart dress-makers, those Lewises. Their stores featured the best of "a's" apparel—and with each outfit purchased they always gave two hangers.

Now it so happens that Mrs. Blimp felt in love with the "d" half of the firm. Ask me why and I can do it with a snicker. Maybe it was the point in her heart or the pomade in his hair. Or maybe it was because the "d" was a shiek—and Mrs. Blimp believed in the old adage, "Shiek and Ye shall find."

At any rate, Junior Lewis liked Mrs. Blimp with the same old passion. Whenever she came into the store with Joe Junior going as though he had the palsy. He was in love with this bimbo and she was in love with him. And so the words have been ever written by the poet laureate of the "d" half of the firm.

Joe Blimp was the never good husband. That is to say, he never got along. And it wasn't long before his loving wife left her bed and her home, and took up with the young Lewis.

That, of course, should have been the signal for Joe to go out, get himself properly plastered and dig up a 1933 model of Mrs. Blimp with a new pair of pants.

But he didn't. And he wasn't madder. And he wasn't madder. In fact, his belongings were so good that they would have made a cowboy weep for the rider. And he was the man next door come in. "Say, Blimp," he asserted sympathetically, "you'd have to try to do this for me. My kids are trying to do this for me. It's not—but if you don't stop it I'll have to part your hair with a soda bob."

Blimp never stopped. "Oh," he wailed, "this is terrible. Horrible. Awful! My wife has been with Junior Lewis for three years in love in sin with him rather than to starve decently with me. She's gone. I tell you, gone."

Then came the second touch of irony. His neighbor, who had bowed low.

"Blimp," he murmured, "your wife has left. But for God's sake, taking my hat off to you right now. You pardon me, but I've been in my house and set a bottle. I know now just how you worked it."

"From that day on Joe acted a trifle better. He didn't cut out

Swim in Boston

One of the outstanding city swimmers in the country, Miss Jean McCullough of New York city, is expected to participate in the Boston American-Swimming Association annual swimming races at Cooper's Field, South Boston, Saturday, July 29.

Miss McCullough is New York metropolitan champion in dash events and also national junior freestyle champion in short distances. She is a member of the Dragon Club.

William Mosley, president of the Dragon Club, says he hopes to see McCullough and several other stars of his organization. One is Miss Louise Heller, who is expected to be a contestant in the dashes.
